

The response to Bumper Sticker from many of you, my colleagues, has been, "What a great idea! Do you have my favorite ...?"

Of course, I keep seeing new sayings I wish I could have shared. So this is my chance to supplement my collection and for you to share some of your favorites.

In choosing sayings for my book, I passed over many that were political but ephemeral, many that were funny but vulgar, and many, as I say in the introduction, cheering for local night spots, sports teams, radio stations, boy bands, etc. Local topical might be perfect for your class, but ...

In this on-line supplement, I will share some of the sayings I passed over – well, not the cruel, personal, or vulgar ones, of course. If you would like to share, please send your suggestions to me at andy@ProLinguaAssociates.com with the subject: Bumper. This page isn't meant to be an open blog; I feel I should be the gatekeeper. However, I am sure you have seen some jewels I haven't. So do share with your fellow teachers. I'll start:

Keep Vermont Weird

Save a tree. Eat a beaver.

Break for Moose

It could save your life

The Forest be with you

Obamanation

Obamacares

Any problem

can be screwed up more

by a computer

Clarity of thought

Warmth of heart

Strength of purpose

Global economics

survival of the richest

Can't feed 'em?

Don't breed 'em

Yes, this is my truck

No, I won't help you move

I respect your opinion

I just don't want to hear it

I child-proofed my house

but they still get in!

If you can read this ...

thank your mom and Dr. Seuss

Money talks

Mine always says "Goodbye"
